

Who needs the BIIAB APLH?

Licensing law in England and Wales states that anyone who sells or authorises the sale of alcohol to the public must hold a personal licence.

Those who wish to obtain a personal licence need to apply to their local authority.

Applicants will be asked for a number of things to support their application; one of these is proof that they hold a government approved licensing qualification such as the BIIAB APLH.

Everything you need to know to apply for a personal licence

You can rest assured that the BIIAB APLH covers everything you need to know to pass the qualification's examination and apply for your personal licence. What's more, it's been developed with experts from the industry to make sure it truly meets the needs of those who want to succeed.

The BIIAB APLH covers the syllabus set by government to enable candidates to understand the law in relation to:

- the roles, responsibilities and functions of licensing authorities within the framework of the licensing objectives
- the application process for a personal licence
- the role and legal responsibilities of the personal licence holder, and the penalties relating to failure to comply with the law
- the premises licence
- the content and purpose of operating schedules
- the role and duties of the designated premises supervisor
- unauthorised and temporary licensable activities
- rights of entry to licensed premises
- police powers with regard to suspension and closure of licensed premises
- the specific prohibitions for the sale of alcohol
- the strengths of alcoholic drinks, and the effects of alcohol on the body
- the protection of children from harm
- the responsible sale of alcohol.

How long does it take?

Training for the BIIAB APLH can be completed in one day and is offered by BIIAB approved training centres. There are over 600 BIIAB approved training centres, across 6,000 venues in the UK. The training is usually followed on the same day by one short multiple-choice exam with 40 questions. Training is supported by the BIIAB APLH handbook, or workbook, both of which are written in an easy-to-follow format and contain all the information needed to pass the exam.

All questions test the knowledge of the person taking the exam. The exam covers all aspects of the law and social responsibilities in relation to the sale of alcohol to the public. By always containing questions relating to the licensing objectives and social responsibilities, the BIIAB APLH has the added advantage of acting as a safeguard for the candidate's personal licence* and their business.

Longer tuition and self-study options including e-learning are also available and candidates can also choose to take the exam on-line. These options are available through BIIAB approved training centres.
